Letters to KATY

DEAR KATY:

I moved to Alberta, Canada about three years ago but I'm still having some problems. School is fine and so is my family but I still miss the place I used to live. There is something really special there and I just can't find it here. I miss my friends too and letter writing just doesn't help. I'm originally from Prince Edward Island.
LOVE, YOUR FRIEND MARTINA

DEAR MARTINA:

I know how you feel. It is hard to move and leave friends and a familiar place behind. But now you have a challenge to find some special people and places in Alberta. You may have to look a little harder, but I know it's there. Get involved with clubs and extra-curricular activities instead of pining for the past. But can I tell you a secret? If we develop a special place inside ourselves we can take it with us wherever we go!
Good luck!
LOVE, KATY

DEAR KATY:

I want to let you know I'm fan of yours. I look forward to the day when your comic book comes out. Many times I find myself designing your fashions in my head. I hope your comic book comes out soon with my simple fashions in it. Thank you. Write back soon. You, too, Sis!
YOUR FAN,
Courtney Huebsch
Livingston Manor, NY

DEAR COURTNEY:

Thank you for your nice letter! It's people like you who make my day! Keep those fashion designs coming, fans. I just love wearing your clothes!
LOVE KATY

DEAR KATY:

We have this problem. At school everyone treats us like dorks. We don't fit in and we don't understand why. We have very few school friends and everyone treats us like outcasts. What can we do to fit in? Is there a solution?
SIGNED, HOPELESS FANS KRISTINA AND IVANA

DEAR KRISTINA AND IVANA:

Take heart! Studies have shown that for some reason kids who felt like they didn't fit in at school went on to do great things in adult life! Our society is funny that way. Sometimes we worship shallow and superficial people just because they are pretty, cool, or good in sports. And we ignore those who might look or act a little differently. You never get to know their wonderful inner qualities. You say you have very few school friends. Well, one good friend is all you need. Hang in there. This is a phase many successful people go through and it will soon pass.
LOVE KATY

DEAR KATY:

I always seem to get in trouble with my parents because they think every time my two brothers do something wrong it's my fault even though it's not. And then I go up to my room and cry and when I come down my parents scold me because I am not good to my brothers. Please help me!
LOVE, AN UNHAPPY SISTER

DEAR SISTER:

I think it would be good to have a heart to heart talk with your parents about the way you feel. If you think about things your brothers did but you got blamed for. Be honest with both them and yourself!
LOVE KATY

DEAR KATY:

I am 10 years old and in the 4th grade. I am not at all popular. In fact, I only have 14 friends but my problem is I had a crush on one boy. We got close and then it got to be terrible and we didn't get along (good thing I never told him I liked him). Now I like another boy much more but we're slowly drifting apart. Should I tell him I like him? Should I try to make him like me? It's making me mess up on school work just thinking about it. I know I'm a bit young for this romance stuff but it always takes over. I think I should drop love and keep him for a friend. Is that a good thing to do?

SINCERELY, A 10 YEAR OLD IN MINNEAPOLIS

DEAR "10":

You ONLY have 14 friends? That seems like much more than anyone can handle. You sound pretty popular to me. In fact, one good friend is all we need. Aim for quality, not quantity. As for the boys, NEVER try to make someone like you. It just won't work and you'll end up feeling like a fool. Just be yourself and if he doesn't see your good qualities, tough luck on him. There are plenty of other fish in the sea. Tell him you enjoy his friendship but I wouldn't go any further than that. I'm worried about your school work! If it's starting to suffer then you are too involved with this love stuff. Study hard, be a good person, and you'll always be surrounded by true friends of both sexes.
LOVE, KATY

DEAR KATY:

My name is Belinda Plows. I come from Capetown, South Africa. As you can see I have made some designs for you. I love designing clothes but I want to become an actress when I grow up. I enjoy your comics very much. They are the best! I'm eleven and I have a cat and two dogs. My cat's name is Fluffy. And my dogs are Kitt and Do-Do. I know the names of the dogs are very funny. Katy, maybe you can help me solve a problem... I can't find a boyfriend. The guy who sits besides me in school loves me but he also loves this other girl. I need a steady boyfriend. I'm desperate!
FROM, BELINDA

DEAR BELINDA:

Don't worry so much. You don't NEED a boyfriend. Believe me, sometimes boys are more trouble than they are worth. Just be yourself, be happy and sooner or later a nice boy will come to you. However, if you really are desperate, find a boy that is unattached. See what his interests are (computers, baseball, etc.) and then you'll have something to talk about. The best friendships are built around common interests and he'll respect you for this.
LOVE, KATY

DEAR KATY:

I like your stories. They are great. Katy Keene has lots of nice clothes and looks wonderful in them. The boys will go crazy over the girls you draw and the girls like me will go crazy over the boys you draw. Your stories seem so real to me. I am one of your biggest fans.
SINCERELY, LE TRAN, BROOKLYN, NY

DEAR LE:

Thanks for your nice letter. It's great to hear from you.
LOVE, KATY
